X-MAIL

960 MARVEL COMICS GROUP, 575 MADISON AVE., N.Y.C. 10022

Masters of Marvelous Membrals.

I have three subjects to discuss concerning your fantastic NEW X MEN To begin:

Congratulations on issue #100. The artwork was even better than usual, and—together with the plot—it moved so smooth and fast that the story was over before it began. I just object to anniversary issues being continued.

Secondly, there is something in the X Men that gets my adrenalin flowing, and the reason is obvious. The unique feel of internationalism in all those new, fresh heroes clicks relays and activates systems. On that note, I cannot resist listing my favorites.

Colossus is at the top of my list. He has a friendly, naive aura coupled with vibes of incredible raw power. wow!

Nightcrawler is second. Most of your physically non human heroes are gruff, sarcastic, or plain dumb, but Nightcrawler comes across suave and sophisticated, almost a Tony Stark with a tail.

With Wolverine, I have a horror fascination. I keep my eyes on him to see what the maniac will do next. Oh, a question. Why does everybody call him "shorty"? "midget" etc. He doesn't look that short.

Storm is one of Marvel's deepest characters, but I'd just as soon leave my weather making to Thor (But it could be an interesting team up).

Finally, I have a great nomination for a new X Man! He's one of Marvel's oldest characters, he's a mutant, and his power is certainly nothing to sneer at. Who, you ask? Why none other than Magneto!

If you recall, in DEFENDERS #16, the godling Alpha gave Magneto and the other Evil Mutants a new lease on life by reverting them all to babyhood.

Now, what better place to raise five infant home superiors than Professor X's specially designed school, a place where they would be set on the right path this time, to grow up as heroes instead of villains. Well?

Murray Lindsay

Box 245

Etobicoke, Saskatchewan

Canada S0L 0Z0

Funny you should mention Magneto, Murray! 'Cause if you saw our last page, you now know that he's coming back with a vengeance! As to just how he sprung back from babyhood... well, that's a story that will be unfolding in the issues to come.

You do bring up an interesting point about Wolverine, though! Why do they call him "shorty"? We put the question to Associate Editor Jim Shooter (6'7"), who swiftly replied, "Because he's a runt!"

"Yeah, that's right!" agreed Assistant Editor Scott Edelman (6'4").

"Aw, he's not that short!" chided Reprint Editor Roger Stern (5'8").

"He is too!" yelled in visiting artist Dave Cockrum (5'10"). "Wolverine is only about five-foot four!"

Editor in chief Archie Goodwin (5'6") was unavailable for comment.

Dear Chris and Dave,

You deserve commendations for the one hundredth issue of THE X MEN. Technically the magazine was a knockout. Dave's artwork and Bonnie's coloring were comparable to Neal Adams work on the 1969 Sentinels trilogy. Chris' scripting was wonderfully dramatic without being melodramatic, especially in his treatment of Jean's decision and its execution.

Chris' scripting intrigues me for another reason. I've been an X fan since 1967. At this time I thought it highly unlikely that a good mutant was Caucasian who just happened to live on the east coast of the United States. The emergence of an interracial team is a great step forward. As a young black woman, I am particularly interested in Chris' development of Ororo. I wonder how Chris will handle her relationship with a group of white males. (Did I detect a possible romance between Ororo and Peter in issue #99? That should prove most interesting to watch!) Presently she seems to be a powerful and prominent member. I hope Chris avoids the cliché of the dominating and super strong black woman. Ororo's development should not overwhelm the development of the other new X Men, despite her popularity.

In the past, the writers of THE X MEN have always cast Scott as the dark, mysterious, brooding (and long suffering) Cyclops. Characters who are always right hearted and carefree are usually less interesting than the sombre type. Roy Thomas real red the and as a result, Scott is the most memorable X Man, and the favorite of many readers. But, people, enough is enough! Lighten up on Cyclops. Will he ever be happy? It's bad enough that his own brother tried to kill him, but in issue #100 Jean and Scott (after a brief and happy reunion) are again separated. I hope the separation is temporary.

The new X MEN is a fascinating magazine, and a great team if Dave, Chris, and the rest of the crew keep up the good work. THE X MEN should enjoy a long run.

Marilyn Bregdon

1420 Washington Ave.

Bronx, NY 10458

Dear Guys,

Well, you did it.

Dave, I didn't think you could top the artwork of GIANT. SIZE X MEN #1, but issue #100 was even better. Dynamite!

Chris, X MEN #100 was also your best issue yet. It was nice to see the mellow side of Storm this time around. Not that I don't adore those savage scenes, but you were turning her into a cold, stand offish machine! She seemed so much more real to me when she tried to reappear with the phony Marvel Girl first, instead of instantly lashing out with brute force.

And the sudden flood of affect on for Wolverine shouldn't be too surprising. His deliciously awful slang and tough guy stance could win anybody's heart and I'm no exception. Sure he's a homicidal maniac, but who cares? He's ovabie!

Next issue? I'm dying to know what the radiation will do to Jeanie. Will she get more powers? Will she lose some? It'll have to be something drastic, 'cause I know she's getting her own mag.

Gents, when you have a team as great as the new X Men, there is no excuse to let the quality fall below that of issue #100. Keep it up!

And as for Nightcrawler being cute... why, I knew that right from the start. Much cuter than that silly disguise anyway! May Great C'thulu take up residence in your fishbowl if you mess him up!

Michelle Crossgrove

501 116th Ave. N. Apt 279

St. Petersburg, FL 33702

Don't worry about Nightcrawler, Michele. 'Cause whenever Chris starts to write his dialogue, Dave suddenly dumps up behind him with a sledge hammer and a determined look. (If that doesn't keep him in line, nothing will!)

But what's all this about Jean getting her own book? She ain't oh, you probably heard the rumor that Jean was going to become Ms. Marvel! Ain't so, Michele. As you know by now, Jean became the Phoenix—quite literally! Carol Danvers is Ms. Marvel! Chris is sure of that. And he'd bloody well better be, as he's taking over the writing reins for Marvel's newest super female with the third issue of her magazine. Watch for it, ya hear? And join us again in sixty for more mighty mutant madness!

OF VAINGLORIOUS VAMPIRES, VANQUISHED VILLAINS, AND VALIANT VICTORS!

STAN LEE'S SOAPBOX

Hi, gang! It's hard to believe a whole year has zipped by since I wrote my last, eminently forgettable Thanksgiving poem on this very page. I was tempted to try another synopsized sonnet this time, but I figured I'd rather just rap with you instead. Anyway, speaking of Thanksgiving, I wonder how many of you remember one of the prime goals we set for ourselves here at Marvel more than a decade ago? I recall writing that our greatest ambition was to change the image of so-called comicbooks—"to take them from the exclusive domain of the bubble-gum brigade and expand our audience to include readers right up to college age—and beyond. Well, the rest of the media left we'd never make it, while our competitors just laughed at us. No one thought we had a ghost of a chance to grab a significant share of adult readership. But here in the Betty Bulpen we were probably too naive to realize how impossible it was. So we just kept on writing and illustrating the very best stories we could combining a university level vocabulary with mature concepts in plotting and characterization together with adult premises and rationalizations. And, most important of all, we never let ourselves forget that above all else, Marvel Comics are meant to be fun! No matter how scholarly, no matter how profound, no matter how philosophically or socially relevant our yarns might be, their primary purpose was (and still is) to entertain you. Finally, we vowed never to "write down" to you, we'd only present stories that we ourselves enjoyed. And we ourselves would be anxious to read. So you see we weren't merely producing pulpism for a bunch of nameless, faceless kids—we were creating far-out, fantastic epics for ourselves, and for countless thousands of our h.p., heroic readers who share the same love of fantasy and excitement as we do. And y'know something? It worked! We succeeded beyond our own wildest expectations! Today, a full 60% of our readership is from 15 to 25 years of age! Today, newspapers, radio, and TV are enthusiastically aware of us giving us more media coverage than almost any other publication! Today, comicbook conventions are among the biggest crowd-pulling events in virtually every major city in the U.S.—and overseas as well! And there's more! One of the world's largest book publishers, Simon & Schuster, has created virtually an entire line of Marvel hardcover editions while Grosset and Dunlap will soon be presenting another unique line of Marvel creations! Each week new invitations cross my desk, requests to speak about Marvel Comics at colleges and universities from Maine to Mexico! In short, our dreams have come true: comics have come of age! And we'll never forget not all to you, you! So now, during this festive Thanksgiving season, nothing could be more appropriate than for all of us in the Marvel Bullpen to extend to each and every one of you our deepest, most heartfelt thanks for making it all possible, for making this truly The Marvel Age of Comics!

Excelsior!

Stan

ITEM! Over the last few months we've been making periodic mention of a new periodical we were planning called WHAT IF? Well, the planning is over and the real thing is here! At last we can finally tell you just exactly what WHAT IF? is! Actually, it's the culmination of a lot of things you readers have suggested to us, and a lot of things Bullpeners have often talked about over lunch or at a party, whenever the standard shop-talk ("What new villain are you having Ghost Rider meet after he finishes off the Comic Carburator?") begins to get wilder and more speculative. Things like: Gee, what would have happened if that buzz bomb which killed Bucky and sent Capt. America into suspended animation had never exploded? or "What if the Hulk had always had Bruce Banner's brain?" Fun things like that which are fascinating to think about, but could never really be done without changing most of Marvel's Madcap history. Then Recently ROY THOMAS who has a knack for taking the difficult or the improbable and turning them into successful comics (I like for instance, CONAN or THE INVADERS), suddenly presented us with a format where virtually anything we wanted to do would be possible! Now? Well, that you'll find out when you see what Roy talented new penciler from Canada way JIM CRAIG, and eminent embellisher PABLO MARCOS have done with the novel notion, WHAT IF SPIDER MAN HAD JOINED THE FANTASTIC FOUR? This first issue picks up on an incident from AMAZING SPIDER MAN #1 where Spidey attempted to join the FF (and changed his mind) and builds it into one of the most unexpected and entertaining epics ever. Naturally, something like this is too big to be contained in one average-size comic. So we made WHAT IF? a double-length king-size book just like our awesome annuals, only instead of being a mere once-a-year blockbuster, WHAT IF? is going to be exploding on the newsstand every other month. Each and every issue will have an exciting new concept (such as those we mentioned about Capt. America and the Hulk, and an exciting new writer-artist combo to bring it all alive for you. In fact, we're set to be flooded with tales of "what if" suggestions, once everyone gets a look at what we're doing. If we're not careful, WHAT IF? could turn into the biggest thing since the no prize!

ITEM! Congratulations to Marvelous MARV and Metaculous MICHELE WOLFMAN who recently announced that they're expecting a baby (but there is absolutely no truth to the rumor that Marv intends to hold another name-the-child contest such as he's doing with the Lord of Vampire's offspring in TOMB OF DRACULA!).

ITEM! Jubilation on the hallowed halls of Marvel! Word just came in that our Sultans of Softball are currently tied for first place in their division of the Publisher's Softball League. Said jubilation is sorely needed as in a no-league exhibition game with a certain Distinguished Competitor the Bullpeners somehow managed to come in second. A rematch has been laid about but next time we're making certain that their guy with the big red "S" on his chest doesn't get in the game!

ITEM! Two more goodies coming your way this month, friends. MARVEL SPOTLIGHT #32, featuring the most surprising superhero of them all SPIDER WOMAN (And if you think you can guess what this one is like, we're betting you're wrong). And finally, there's our gala HOLIDAY GRAB BAG TREASURE EDITION which features just about all of our favorite characters in some of their best stories from the past and in specially prepared all new material as well just to truly make the season bright!

ITEM! Almost no space left, so we'll quickly say "hi" to devastating DAVIDA DALE (recent addition to our art production staff), Dampy DIANE RODRIGO who assists Nitty NANCY MURPHY in processing your subscriptions, Jubilant JOHN ROMITA JR. (Why does that name seem so familiar?), now doing pulse-pounding penciling on some covers and back-up stories, and Handy ANDY YANCHUS, newly chosen Chiefman of our capacious Color Department! And that's about it, except to say good bye and be good to yourselves!

Presenting Monogram's
NEW Jaguar XKE.
1/8th the size of the real car.

From bumper to bumper, Monogram's authentic new Jaguar model captures the elegance and intrigue that made this sportscar a legend. And does it in a big way... the finished model is 21½ inches long! A kit so colossal in size, others look tiny in comparison.

But size isn't the only reason to build Monogram's Jaguar. The kit comes complete with a car-load of extras like real rubber tires and turnable front wheels, realistic instrument panel and interior, hood that tilts forward to show the highly detailed engine, doors that open and close, windows that are operated by a crank (just like real cars) and more.

And because the parts are molded in color, you don't even have to wait to paint your new model. You can have a flashy new Jaguar to show off to your friends... in a flash. Monogram's new Jaguar XKE. Ready and waiting for you wherever model kits are sold.
